ACTIVITIES OF STATE DEPART-MENTS—OTHER HAPPENINGS

Special Columbus Correspondent.

More than 100 of the best spellers in the state were in Columbus taking part in the contest to determine who is the champion of the Buckeye state. The contestants did not stand up and "spelled down," as was the case last year. Instead, they wrote out all the words submitted to them. Most of the competitors were girls. Ages ranged from 13 to 20. Claude C. Gossett of Highland county won the state championship last year. State School Superintendent Pearson, in charge of the contest, says that he will back the champion against the best speller of any other state. There will be 20 prizes awarded.

Columbus Tailor Prisoner.

Columbus friends of J. M. Pearson, formerly engaged as a tailor here, have just received letters from him written from the city prison of Manchester, England, where, he explains, he is held for trouble regarding the war. It surprises Columbus friends to hear from Pearson that he is a Pole and that his real name is Adam Leo Czartowski. He went to London from Columbus and tried to enlist in the British army, but this brought out the fact that he, a foreigner, had been living there without reporting his presence to the police, and that he had two names. He says he is to be deported, and, as he claims to be an American citizen, having been made such at Detroit, Mich., it is presumed that he is to be sent to the United States.

Causes of Fires.

Chimney sparks were the most prolific cause of fires last year, so records just completed in the state fire marshal's office show. There were some 530 fires from such a source. Defective flues was second, with 411 fires. Carelessness in handling matches was responsible for 348 fires, and matches in the hands of children caused 149. Carelessness by smokers caused 129. There were 125 fires from gasoline explosions, 117 from lightning, 104 from incendiary and 193 from spontaneous combustion.

"Wouldn't Get Chance to Act."
"I do not think there is a member of the Ohio national guard who would balk when it came to doing his duty," said Adj. Gen. Hough, while discussing the court-martial of the Texas militiamen who refused to enter the federal military service when ordered to do so, "but," he added, "if any did, Ohio would not wait for the federal government to take action in the matter. We would court-martial them so quick the war department never would get a chance to act."

Withdraw $1 Rate.
The $1 coal rate filed with the public utilities commission some time ago by the Hocking Valley railroad has, for the second time, been withdrawn by the company. The time for the filing of evidence to show the reasonableness of the proposed rate has expired without the company submitting any such evidence. The commission is going ahead with its investigation of the present 85-cent rate, which shippers allege is too high.

Large Demand for Bolders.
The war is making large demands upon the bolder factories of this country. J. S. Callery, state bolder inspector, says, and Ohio factories are now sending their products to Russia, Japan, China, South America and South Africa in considerable volume. As all these goods must stand inspection Mr. Callery hopes that American goods may establish such a reputation that they will hold the market after the war is over.

Former Legislator Ill.
Hiram C. Bronson, Columbus, former member of the legislature and the author of the original primary election law, is critically ill at a local hospital and his recovery is not expected. The development of the disease was very sudden and is said to be the enlargement of the glands of the chest. He was to have been a candidate for nomination for election to the legislature again in the coming primaries.

Fell Thirty Feet, Dies.
A few minutes after William E. Paulus, 55, a painter, had taken his place on the scaffold for his day's work he stepped backward off it and fell 30 feet to the ground and suffered a fractured skull, from which he died an hour later.

Youngest Graduate.
It is found that Miss Wilhelmina Slaymaker of Gallipolis is the youngest of the thousand members of the graduating class at the Ohio State university this year. She is 19.

Wasteful Practices.
Numerous wasteful practices in the operation of the state department of public works were found by State Examiners J. E. Harper and Joseph E. Hogan, in a report filed with Auditor of State Donahay. It is for the period from Feb. 15, 1911, to Sept. 1, 1915. The examiners found thousands of pieces of stationery containing the names of former officials which are valueless now. They also found that many land leases have expired and that the tenants are remaining without paying any rent. Criticism is made against former officials and employees.

Two Soldiers Given Pardons.
Two Memorial day pardons were granted by Gov. Willis, one going to a Civil war soldier and one to a Spanish war soldier. The Civil war soldier is Sidney J. Post, convicted in 1913 in Portage county for embezzlement. Last Memorial day he was sent to the Sandusky Soldiers' home on parole. His physical condition is such that he cannot live much longer. The Spanish war veteran pardoned is John Smith, serving a five-year term for homicide from Montgomery county. His term would have expired July 23 this year.

For Old Age Pensions.

"Within a short time we will send out representatives to explain and advocate the old age pension bill which we will initiate this year," said Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, head of the state pension league, who was president of the 1912 state constitutional convention, and later represented Hamilton county in the house of representatives, who was at the state house recently getting data to be used in the initiation of the measure. He said that the bill will provide a dollar a day pension for all dependent men and women of 60 or 65 years of age. The money for this purpose will come from an income tax and an inheritance tax," said Dr. Bigelow. Some 30,000 names will be needed for initiating the measure. Should the legislature turn down the measure, it will be referred to the people for approval or disapproval at the November election next year.

Candidates Must Resign From Board.

County election board members who intend to become candidates for nomination to a county office at the August primary must resign before June 8, the last day for the filing of declaration of candidacies. This is what Attorney General Turner holds in a ruling to Charles E. Ballard, prosecuting attorney of Clarke county. When a person becomes a candidate for office he renders himself ineligible to serve as a member of the county election board. This construction of the law will make it necessary for county election board members who are planning to run for office to resign in order to do so. The attorney general holds that a councilman may become central committee member without jeopardizing his official position.

After Attorney Generalship.

A. L. Hoskins, formerly of Auglaize county, but now engaged in the practice of the law here, has announced his intention to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general. As yet there have been no formal entries for that nomination. It was expected that Joseph McGhee, who was first assistant attorney general under the administration of T. S. Hogan, and defeated candidate for election as attorney general two years ago, would enter, but it is now said that he will not. Mr. Hoskins was a member of the state liquor commission under the administration of Gov. James M. Cox and in 1906 was the Democratic candidate for secretary of state against Carl A. Thompson.

Used City's Money.

The Hamilton board of education owes the sinking fund of the city $1,649, so State Examiner H. D. Waddell in a report made to the bureau holds in a report made to the bureau recently. Through error, the trustees of this fund, who are also trustees of the board's sinking fund, used the city's money in paying off school bonds. The board is ordered to reimburse the city for this. The bond of $150,000 given by the depositary of the city to secure deposits is declared insufficient because the deposits at the time of the examination amounted to $165,986. The bond should be in excess of the deposits.

Gave Library to Home County.

The late Col. J. T. Holmes had what is supposed to be the finest private law library in the state and it was hoped by the Columbus bar that he would bequeath it to the local law library, but his will, which has been filed for probate, gives it to the law library of Jefferson county, where he began the practice of law before the Civil war. After the close of the war he never returned to Steubenville, but lived in Columbus.

Willie to Have Opposition.

Three more candidates have filed nomination papers with Secretary of State Hildebrandt, all Republicans. They are Attorney George W. Shaw of Cleveland, who has entered as a candidate against Gov. Willis; Attorney General Edward C. Turner, who is seeking re-nomination; and Joseph T. Tracy of Portsmouth, head of the state accounting bureau, who is a candidate for the nomination for auditor of state.

Harmon Will Not Accept.

Cincinnati delegates to the Democratic state campaign convention brought up the news that it would be out of the question to induce former Gov. Judson Harmon to stand for the Democratic nomination for governor this year. Though there were many close friends of the former governor in the delegation, they all told the same story, that he was not thinking of all of being a candidate.

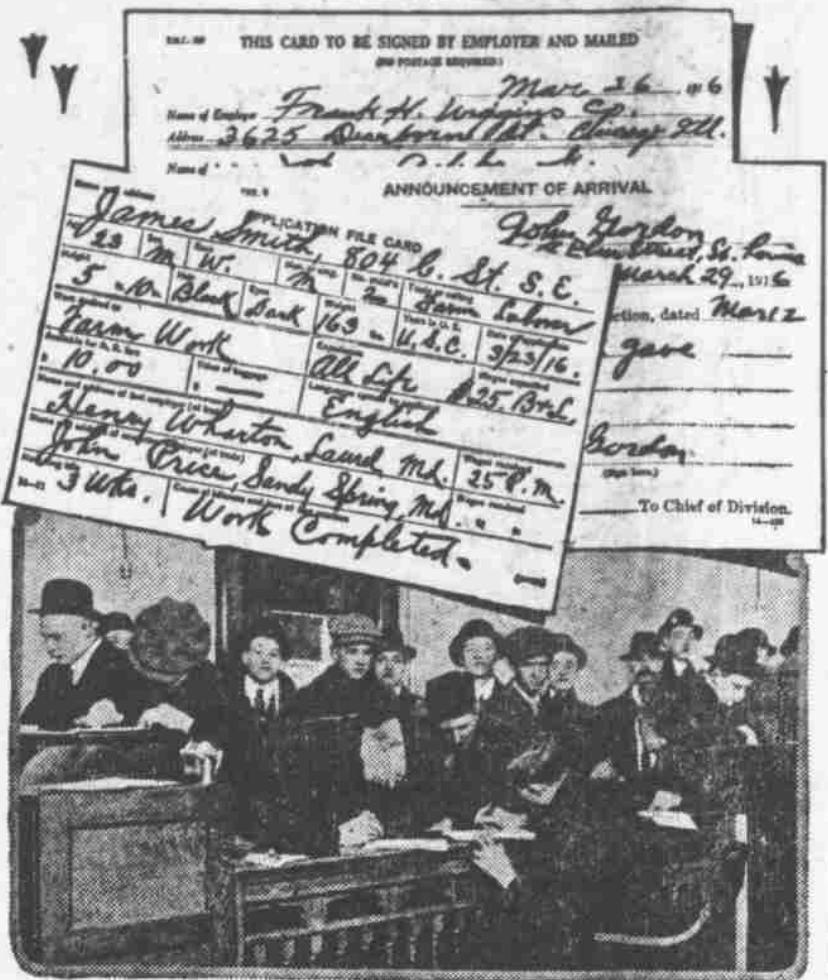

Recommend Clemency to Three.

The state pardon board rejected 18 out of 21 applicants who wanted to be freed from the penitentiary. The three recommended for clemency are Budge Snyder, Tuscarawas county, serving an indeterminate sentence for assault, to be committed to be released at once; U. G. Hutton, Meigs county, serving an indeterminate sentence for incest, to be committed to be released at once; and Wallace Davis, Scioto county, serving life for burglary, to be committed to be released soon on condition that he support his mother. Those rejected were mostly murderers.

Fire Losses Decrease.

Ohio's total fire loss decreased more than $2,000,000 in 1915, so a report by State Fire Marshal Buckley shows. In 1915 there were 4,653 fires with a loss of $5,547,786, while in 1914 there were 7,653 fires with a loss of $7,899,622. The value of the buildings and contents involved in 1915 fires was $42,675,300, on which $20,952,511 insurance was carried. The daily average number of fires was 12.74 and the average loss $1,192.30, making an average daily loss of $15,189.90. Cincinnati has the lowest per capita loss among the five largest cities of the state.

"HELLO! THAT YOU UNCLE SAM?"

Above—Typical laborer's application and samples of other cards which are allowed to pass through the mails free in connection with Uncle Sam's new work in providing jobs for the jobless. Below—Scene in Philadelphia federal employment office.

"Hello! That You, Uncle Sam?"

"Yea."
"Well, I'm Jim Smith of X-town. I want a job."
"What can you do, Mr. Smith?"
Smith tells the kind of job he is fitted for.

Uncle Sam runs through his records. Then:
"Say, Smith, here's Jones who wants a man, and it looks as though you are just the fellow for the place. You'd better talk to him. Wait a minute and I'll connect you with Jones."

Smith and Jones talk. Usually Smith proves available for Jones' need.

Several thousand Smiths are now being connected by the government with several thousand Joneses in about this way every month.

The departments of labor, commerce, interior, agriculture and the post office co-operate. The direct management is in the hands of the division of information, immigration, service, department of labor. It is the plan of uniting the jobless man and the manless job which was originated by President Wilson two years ago, and now is in full working order.

Though the telephone is actually used but little, a network of facilities and a series of "switchboards" are provided through which the government men at the government "central" are able to say promptly to the man who wants work or to the man who has work to give: "Here's your party."

The method of operation is thus described by Secretary of Labor Wilson: "Through the co-operation of the post-office department it became possible to bring to the aid of the labor-distribution service some 60,000 post offices, and thereby to create a network of communication between employers needing help without knowing where to find it, and workers wanting employment without knowing where to get it.

"Either employer or workman may obtain at any post office in the United States a blank application supplied by the department of labor which, after filling out and signing, he may deposit in the mails anywhere free of postage. Sometimes an application for an employer and one for a worker in the same post office neighborhood may be mutual in their requirements. In such cases the postmaster often brings the parties together without forwarding their applications. Otherwise all applications go from the post offices where deposited to the nearest station or substation of the department of labor. They are there compared for the purpose of noting reciprocal requirements and bringing work-seeker and employer together. This is done as full as possible at each station and substation. But applications which remain unmatched at the respective stations and substations are then forwarded to the division of information at Washington, where an examination results in comparisons of all matched applications from the country at large. Such of these as still remain unmatched are bulletined to all stations and substations with a view to their being matched at one or the other of them."

meal made by the modern processes, which eliminate the outer layers of the kernels. And that a diet mainly of bread made from pure white flour, with the husks of the wheat kernels eliminated, is just as dangerous.

Climate has little to do with it. An outbreak of beriberi occurred among the fishermen of Newfoundland, who at the time lived chiefly on bread made from highly milled wheat flour. There's a nutritive element in cereals which the scientists call the "vitamines." When you do away with the outer shell of the grain, you lose the vitamins.

Forest Notes.

Uncle Sam, through the forest service, United States department of agriculture, says:

The increase in the demand for potash has resulted in a number of inquiries of government officials concerning the amount of this chemical contained in wood ashes which may be available at sawmills operating on the national forests.

The waste product of sawmills in the United States, including that fed to the furnaces as fuel, is estimated to be 35,000,000 cords per year, and the equivalent of 2,800,000,000 cubic feet of solid wood substance. About half of it has no use whatever but is usually burned to get rid of it.

The chestnut blight has already done damage estimated at close to $50,000,000. The disease attacks both American and European species but does little damage to those from Japan and China. Plant breeders by crossing Japanese chestnut and native chinquapin have produced resistant trees. Some of the Chinese chestnuts are said to grow 100 feet high in their home forests.

The annual losses of live stock on the national forest ranges of the West due to predatory animals are more than $500,000. An organized campaign is now going on to exterminate these animals. Wolves are responsible for about 70 per cent of the cattle losses, while bears cause most of the remainder. Approximately 75 per cent of the sheep losses are due to coyotes, 30 per cent to bears, and five per cent to lynxes and wildcats. Mountain lions are charged with killing only a few head of cattle and sheep.

Quantity Smaller; Value Greater.
According to the United States bureau of the census, there was a decrease of 19.5 per cent in the number of leather-manufacturing establishments in the United States between 1909 and 1914, but an increase of 12.1 per cent in the value of their products. The number of cattle hides tanned showed a decrease of 4.5 per cent during that time, but an increase of 25 per cent in value.

FARMER'S GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Demand for Canadian Cattle After the War.

The opportunities that Western Canada offers to the farmer have time and again been placed before the public through these columns. The cheap price at which the very best lands can be purchased, and the advantage that is to be had in securing one of the free homesteads of 160 acres has appealed to a great many, and they have embraced them. Many, in fact most of those who have done so are today giving testimony to the good fortune and the timely forethought that led them to go to Western Canada, and embark in an era of farming that has placed them away beyond the pinch of want and given them reason to look into the future with a hopefulness that they had not had the courage in the past to forecast.

Not only have they been able to secure good lands at low prices and on easy terms but if they desire they have been able to add to this 160 acres of land free, on conditions that are easy. A resident in the Lloydminster district in Saskatchewan who had been farming in the States for some time, took up a homestead in 1910, and commenced breaking with 4 oxen. Two years ago he bought an adjoining quarter section and now has over 100 acres under cultivation. He says, "As my circumstances improved, I sold the oxen and now have six head of horses, twelve head of cattle, and have always a bunch of hogs on hand."

"On an average I have had yields of 25 bushels of wheat, 65 bushels of oats, and 40 bushels of barley to the acre, and last season from a field of 28 1/2 acres, I threshed 1,040 bushels of wheat. I have made a success of mixed farming and would have no hesitation in advising all who contemplate making a new home to come to this district. I sell cream to the Government Creamery here, and find at all times a good market for live stock and other produce."

This is but a modest statement of what a modest man can do in Western Canada, and could be repeated of hundreds of others.

Scores of cases could be recited where much more has been accomplished, and it is believed that with moderate investment at the present time, the cattle industry of Western Canada will pay large interest.

The Minister of Agriculture of Saskatchewan, in a recent address, ventured the prediction that the Saskatchewan farmer who developed his land along the lines of general stock breeding would make much more money and find a far bigger return for his efforts in ten years' time than the man who devoted his energies purely and primarily to grain raising. This was the coming golden age of opportunity for the stockman and it was up to the Saskatchewan man to get in on the ground floor and prepare himself for the coming demand.

The close of the war would undoubtedly see a great demand for live stock in Europe and it was only reasonable to suppose that this demand would have to be filled almost wholly by American stockmen, both in Canada and the United States. Europe was not only its beef and dairy animals but was also using the finer breeding animals and the end of the war would see a condition of affairs which would render necessary almost the repopulation of the domestic animal kingdom in that continent.

The opportunity of Western Canadian stockmen, therefore, lay in being prepared for this demand when it arose. In view of these facts which must be patent to every student of economic conditions as related to the stock industry, he hoped to see within the next three years the stock raising industry in Saskatchewan given an immense impetus forward, which would put it in the forefront of the producing provinces of the Dominion.—Advertisement.
